IN MEMORIAM

HARRY AND SARAH STOWERS

Harry and Sarah Stowers embodied a love that continues to leave lasting fingerprints on our community, including the McNabb Center.

In 1960, Harry and his two brothers founded Stowers Machinery Corporation, the Caterpillar equipment dealer in East Tennessee. After managing the company's Chattanooga operations, he and Sarah moved to Knoxville in 1982.

Together, they committed their time, talents, and resources to many worthy causes in our region. One of their most beloved passions was serving the McNabb Center. Harry was actively involved in every significant fundraising effort for the center from 1987 until his death. He served as executive chairman of the Helen Ross McNabb Foundation Board in 1994-95. The Center awarded Harry and Sarah with the prestigious McNabb Center Spirit Award in 2007.

Both Sarah and Harry dedicated themselves to the Center's programs, especially services for at-risk children.

Along with their community work, Sarah and Harry were sports enthusiasts. They were avid tennis players and fans. Among their greatest joys was watching family members play among the highest levels of the game. Harry also played basketball at Lehigh University.

Throughout their 55 years of marriage, Sarah and Harry exemplified kindness, generosity, integrity, love, and humility. Before Harry passed in 2007, he and Sarah worked tirelessly to help the McNabb Center provide essential services for people with the most needs and fewest resources in East Tennessee. Until her death in 2021, Sarah continued her beloved husband's legacy of philanthropy, inspiring countless others.

In honor of Sarah and Harry, the Stowers family serves as champions for the McNabb Center. Wes and Liz Stowers, Jenny Stowers and Adam Brock, and Stewart and Samantha Stowers, along with their eight grandchildren, continue Harry and Sarah's commitment to helping those in need.

MCNABB CENTER

Dear fans, sponsors and supporters,

Welcome to the 2024 Knoxville Challenger!

We are excited to once again host the Challenger tournament in Knoxville and celebrate with you and some of the world's top tennis players!

Proceeds from the tournament benefit services provided to our community's most vulnerable citizens through the McNabb Center. The McNabb Center is a premier, not-for-profit provider of mental health services across East Tennessee. Over the past 75 years, the Center has stayed true to its mission of "improving the lives of the people we serve" through high quality, compassionate care to those in need.

This event would not be possible without hundreds of sponsors, volunteers and spectators. Together we are improving lives, and we are thankful for our great community partners.

Please join me in thanking Scott Patrick, our tournament director, and the committee members who have worked all year to make the Knoxville Challenger a first-class tournament experience. I would also like to recognize the University of Tennessee for its contribution. The Goodfriend Indoor Tennis Center is a state-of-the-art facility and serves as an exciting location for the tournament.

We have found a winning combination of tennis, charity and community – thank you for supporting the Knoxville Challenger and the McNabb Center!

Mona Blanton-Kitts, CEO

Denis Kudla

Denis Kudla is a Ukrainian-American professional tennis player known for his aggressive baseline play and solid performance on various court surfaces. Born on August 17, 1992, in Kyiv, Ukraine, Kudla moved to the United States at a young age and was raised in Arlington, Virginia, where he began training in tennis. He turned professional in 2010 and quickly gained attention for his resilience and tactical skill on the court.

Kudla has achieved a career-high ATP singles ranking within the top 100 and is known for his strong performances in Grand Slam tournaments, particularly on grass courts. He reached the fourth round of Wimbledon in 2015, his best Grand Slam result to date, showcasing his agility and comfort on the faster surface. Over the years, Kudla has been a consistent competitor on the ATP Challenger Tour, where he has claimed multiple titles, demonstrating his tenacity and skill in high-stakes matches.

Denis Kudla is widely respected for his work ethic and his commitment to continuous improvement. While his career has had its challenges, including occasional injuries and stiff competition, Kudla remains a formidable player admired by fans for his determination and ability to compete at a high level on the world stage.

Nestled in the foothills of the Smokey Mountains, Knoxville, TN based SolVIS, Inc was founded in 2013 by Augustin and Lindsey Manolache. With many years of prior experience in the machine vision and traffic camera industry, the Manolache's had a clear VISION in mind. That vision, to become a partner to our clients by adding a value that far surpasses machine vision, is still our driving force today. A partnership that provides exponential growth for our clients and delivers bottom line value. SolVIS INC now employs a staff of controls engineers, mechanical engineers, algorithm/software engineers, and mechanical/ electrical technicians. While machine vision remains SolVIS' core competency, track and traceability, controls systems service, MES/ SCADA integration, software development, and robotics have become a large portion of SolVIS' business. Let SolVIS INC be your partner for a clear vision in your next automation project.

Christopher Eubanks

2021 Knoxville Challenger Winner

Christopher Eubanks is an American professional tennis player known for his towering height, powerful serve, and dynamic presence on the court. Born on May 5, 1996, in Atlanta, Georgia, Eubanks developed his tennis skills at an early age and honed them further during his college career at Georgia Tech, where he was a standout player and a two-time All-American. His college success laid the foundation for his transition to the professional circuit in 2017.

Eubanks is particularly known for his aggressive style, using his height and reach to dominate at the net and deliver impressive serves. His breakthrough on the ATP Tour came in 2023, highlighted by a quarterfinal run at Wimbledon, where his powerful game and athleticism shone on the grass courts. This performance solidified his reputation as a formidable player, especially on fast surfaces, and captured widespread fan attention for his charismatic and determined style.

With a career-high ranking within the top 30, Eubanks is celebrated for his perseverance, sportsmanship, and dedication to continuous improvement. He remains an inspiring figure in American tennis, known for his commitment to the sport and his enthusiastic connection with fans, who eagerly follow his journey as he continues to rise in the ranks of professional tennis.
